

The POMS College of Behavior in Operations Management is pleased to announce a half-day mini-conference in Chicago, IL, on Thursday, April 19, 2012, the day before the POMS annual meeting. MARK YOUR CALENDARS:

Mini-Conference of the POMS College of Behavior in Operations Management

Thursday, April 19, 2012. Time: 1:00 p.m. – 7:00 p.m., followed by a conference dinner.

Behavioral Operations Management research is interdisciplinary in nature, and often draws from neighboring fields such as Consumer Behavior, Organizational Behavior, Psychology, Decision Theory, or Experimental Economics. We are planning a program that includes a number of academics from the above mentioned areas who will provide overviews on the state-of-the art and anticipated trends in their fields. The purpose of the mini-conference is to provide outside perspectives on, and input for, our growing field. The meeting is NOT meant to be a smaller-scale equivalent to the Behavioral Track at the main conference (organized this time by Yaozhong Wu, SMU, and Feryal Erhun, Stanford).

The board of the College invites your feedback, questions, and suggestions. Do not hesitate to contact us and get involved!

Registration fees for the mini-conference (including dinner) are $70 for College members, $100 for non-members, and $30 for students. You will receive further program and registration details soon. We look forward to meeting you in Chicago!
